ECONOMY

Older Adults Fearful of Present Economy

Americans over 60 call today's economic state the worst they have ever experienced 70% have cut back on essentials like food and transportation, yet few adjust their longer term retirement plans.

When asked to compare the current economy to similar situations in the past, 53% of Americans over the age of 60 said today's economic conditions are worse than those they have experienced in the past, even though unemployment and inflation rates have been higher within the last 30 years. A new poll from the MetLife Mature Market Institute®, conducted by Harris Interactive®, reports that an overwhelming majority of this group is feeling the pinch in today's current economy and that it has affected the way they spend their money, but not their plans for retirement.

In Feeling the Economic Pinch: A MetLife Poll of Americans 60+, 87% of respondents said they are curtailing their spending; 70% are cutting back on essentials like food and transportation. Eighty-two percent are spending less on non-essentials like dining out and vacation. In addition, 17% report having had to provide more financial assistance to family and/or friends as a result of the current economy.

"There is no doubt that older Americans are being adversely affected by the current situation," said Sandra Timmermann, Ed.D., director of the MetLife Mature Market Institute. "A closer look at the findings shows that women are tightening their spending habits more than men, and not surprisingly those who earn less are cutting back even more.

"While there have been serious economic downturns in the past, it is clear that this group of people over 60 feel particularly vulnerable during this time of their lives. Yet, it appears that they are not, at this point, changing their longer range retirement plans." Of those who are working, 73% said they would not postpone their planned retirement date because of the current economy. Only 16% of all respondents are withdrawing or plan to withdraw more from their retirement funds than they originally planned.

Timmermann acknowledged it's a good sign that people are not panicking by withdrawing their retirement funds, but warned that a reassessment of finances and long term planning may be necessary since people can live 30 or more years in retirement.

Other findings include the following:

- With regard to increased fuel costs, a contributing factor in the economy, 60% of those polled are cutting back on auto transportation.
- More women have cut back on essentials than men (75% vs. 63%).
- Ninety-four percent of those who earn less than $35,000 a year have cut back on spending, compared to 72% of those who earn $75,000 or more a year.
- Twenty-three percent say they are currently taking more positive action over finances (i.e. reading more about finances, seeking help from a financial advisor).
- Fifty percent say what keeps them up at night is money-related.

TECHNOLOGY

Easier-to-Hit 'Targets' Help Older Computer Users

Older people could make better use of computers if icons, links and menu headings automatically grew bigger as the cursor moves towards them.

A new University of Reading study has shown that 'expanding targets' of this kind, which grow to twice their original size and provide a much larger area to click on, could deliver :

- A 50%+ reduction in the number of mistakes older people make when using a computer mouse to 'point and click'
- A 13% reduction in the time older people take to select a target

Although the potential advantages of expanding targets are well known in the computing research community, this study was the most comprehensive to date to focus specifically on their benefits for older people. Undertaken as part of the SPARC (Strategic Promotion of Ageing Research Capacity) initiative, the findings will be discussed at this year's BA Festival of Science in Liverpool. SPARC is supported by the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council (EPSRC) and the Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council (BBSRC).

With age-related changes in their capabilities, many older people can find it extremely challenging to position a cursor accurately using a mouse. In some cases, this may even discourage some people from using computers altogether.

Automatically expanding targets could be introduced through simple changes to software products. They not only have the potential to make it simpler and quicker to use computers but could also play a role in encouraging wider use of computers among older people in general.

This could lead to a greater number of older people shopping and communicating online and accessing web-based information about healthcare services, for instance. It could boost their quality of life and enable continued independent living, especially if their ability to travel declines.

"Using a computer mouse is fundamental to interacting with current computer interfaces", says Dr Faustina Hwang, who led the research. "The introduction of expanding targets could lead to substantial benefits because older people would feel more confident in their ability to control a mouse and cursor. A computer can be a real lifeline for an older person, particularly if they're living alone, and expanding targets could help them harness that potential."

ENVIRONMENT

Older Consumers Buy the Most Green Products

Despite higher costs, more than 6 in 10 U.S. homes now use environmentally friendly household products.

Bucking the belief that environmentalism is a youth movement, consumers over 55 years old are the most prolific users of green products in the United States, according to survey results released today by ICOM Information & Communications.

Both male and female groups 55 years and over reported above average usage of environmentally friendly home goods. Leading the way was the 55-59 year-old female demographic, who was more than twice as likely as the average consumer to use green products. Males 65-69 years old were second, more than 1.7 times as likely to use than the average American.

"The data is very telling for marketers," remarked ICOM Vice President of Marketing Peter Meyers. "There is incredible interest brewing for sustainable products. While the numbers show that significant inroads have been made with the older demographics, they also suggest untapped potential in prime younger consumer groups to engage them with eco-friendly products."

In a rare insight to the penetration of green products into the American home, 61.9% of survey respondents said that they do use some type of environmentally friendly product. When asked why they elect to purchase eco-friendly goods, a leading 33% of the group selected the self-gratifying "makes me feel good about myself."

When asked why they elect not to purchase or use green products, 50% of non-adopters cited high prices as the main factor. The next highest reason selected for avoiding green goods was "I do not believe that they are that much better for the environment," at 17%.

Of those that said they do not use environmentally friendly products, both male and female demographics aged 25-34 years old were among the "least likely to use" when compared with the national average.

"Younger demographics are still green, that is, inexperienced when it comes to engaging with environmentally friendly goods," added Meyers. "The data suggests that targeting these groups with more calculated offers - such as at slightly more aggressive price points, appealing to their personal values or reinforcing the true benefits for the environment - could introduce green products to a new, promising consumer base."

Volunteer Opportunities

Lutheran Senior Services is looking for hospice volunteers. Are you interested in making a difference?

Just a few hours each month can mean so much to our patients and families. Volunteering with hospice includes office support, companionship, running errands, or sharing your special gifts. Your assignments would depend on your interests and availability. In-depth training is provided to all volunteers. For more information, please contact Rachel Fees at (314) 446-2472 or Rfees@lssmo.org.

- The Alzheimer's Association is seeking volunteers to help staff an information booth at the Illinois State Fair in Springfield, IL. Springfield is about 2 hours from St. Louis, approximately 100 miles away. The fair runs from Friday August 8 - Sunday August 17, 2008. We are hoping to have 2 volunteers work each day from 10:00 - 6:00 pm. Constant coverage is not necessary: Volunteers have free reign to take breaks as needed, mingle at the fair, and check out the exhibits. As an incentive, volunteers will receive free admission to the event and free parking. Volunteers will also receive free overnight accommodations at a local hotel in exchange for their service. The room is a double occupancy room with two full beds. It would be ideal if both volunteers know each other so the room is comfortably shared. A small group of friends are welcome to volunteer together if they are comfortable with the provided accommodations. Springfield is a great city with a lot of nice local attractions. Aside from being the state capital, there are also many historic sites and the well-known new Lincoln Museum. If you are interested in volunteering to work a day at the fair, please contact Jennifer Phillips at 314-801-0414 or jennifer.phillips@alzstl.org.
- The Jewish Community Center Adult Day Services needs volunteers to assist in a variety of ways including: interest group leaders that would develop and lead a small group for a particular interest or activity on a weekly or every other week basis; entertainers that could come in to provide musical or other types of entertainment to supplement the professional entertainers that we have; assisting the activity department with special activities or arts and crafts projects. Volunteers will receive orientation and training. Come be a part of a very caring and professional staff and wonderful, loving adults with Alzheimer's and other dementias, developmental disabilities, social isolation, and other special needs. It is truly a rewarding experience. For more information please call Audrey Schneider, Activity Director, at 314-442-3249.
- Do you enjoy public speaking? Do you have a passion for helping families affected by memory loss? The Alzheimer's Association needs volunteers to present information to organizations in your area. They provide training and guidance each step of the way. Volunteers for this role typically have professional and/or family experience with memory loss. Professionals in the field of elder care (nurses, marketing professionals, social workers, doctors) are an especially strong match. Family members who have experienced the changes of Alzheimer's disease in a family member are also well-suited. If you are familiar with the subject, an effective communicator, and interested in helping families, this is a tremendous opportunity. If you are not confident about the subject matter, training and support is provided. To learn more, please email or call Jennifer Phillips, Alzheimer's Association, St. Louis Chapter at jennifer.phillips@alzstl.org or 314-801-0414.
- Odyssey HealthCare is currently accepting Volunteer applications from those who wish to make a difference, by becoming part of a Professional Hospice Team. Odyssey is a hospice agency that serves terminally ill adult patients and their families in 7 counties within Missouri; by providing Clinical, Medical, Psychological, Spiritual and Social Services. Many different opportunities are available for the interested volunteer; Companion Visits, Clerical Assistance, Craft Groups, Pet Therapy, Music Therapy, Story Tellers Program, Family Archive Website, Santa visits, helping to deliver dreams and many more. Volunteer Trainings are held on a regular basis, schedules can be flexible and new volunteers are needed for an ever increasing census. Please call, Pam Ryan, Manager of Volunteer Services at 314-275- 6100 or e-mail pryan@odsyhealth.com to schedule an interview or request more information.

- The Alzheimer's Association is seeking fun, energetic, and dedicated committee members to help grow Memory Walk participation in your area. Committee volunteers are needed in St. Louis, Southeast Missouri, St. Charles County, Franklin County, and Edwardsville/Collinsville, Illinois. A variety of roles are available including assistance with logistics, promotions and publicity, securing corporate sponsors, and recruiting teams and walkers. Whether you are a seasoned walker or new to the event, please contact Jennifer Phillips at 314-801- 0414 or jennifer.phillips@alzstl.org for more information.
- Volunteers Needed for a Study of the Spousal and Adult Child Caregiver's Experience of Placing Their Family Member with Alzheimer's Disease in the Nursing Home (Phase 2) The caregiver must have placed their family member with Alzheimer's disease in the nursing home in the past 12 months. Volunteers will complete three interviews in their home with a nurse who is working on her PhD at Saint Louis University School of Nursing. To learn more about study participation, the risks and benefits of participation, and to volunteer, please call: Jan Palmer at 314-249-5391.
- Bi-Lingual International Assistant Services needs volunteer assistance. Volunteers will be able to meet someone from another world and another culture, and discover that they are alike. The volunteers we seek are going to teach our older students English Language, US History, and US Civics. All - to successfully reach the final goal of becoming a US citizen. No need to know another language, and no need to have teaching experience. These things are definitely a plus, but having patience and desire to help are the most important traits we seek in volunteers. If interested, please, call 314-692- 9010.
- The National MS Society is hosting the 24th annual Bike MS event in Columbia, Missouri on September 5 - 7. We need volunteers to help make the 2008 Bike MS a continued success! The 2007 volunteer team consisted of more than 700 individuals who kept our 2,800 cyclists moving safely. In 2008 we are hoping to secure 3,500 cyclists and need the assistance of more than 800 volunteers. We need YOUR help to assist with all aspects of Bike MS- there is a volunteer activity to engage all skills and volunteer interests! Volunteers, ages 12 and up, are invited to volunteer through the following opportunities: cheer at the finish line, serve breakfast, lunch, or dinner, setup or teardown the event, direct parking, serve beverages, and much more! To volunteer, please log onto www.gatewayaybikemsride.org and click on "Volunteer," email tiffany.heil@gatewaymssociety.org, or call 314-446- 4182. Interested in riding? We have a place for you too! Join the movement. See you at Bike MS!

- Researchers at Washington University School of Medicine are conducting studies for seniors age 65 and older who had hip surgery within the past four months. They are investigating the effects of exercise combined with testosterone replacement therapy on improving physical function and bone density. Patients who lived independently in the community before the surgery are eligible to participate. Transportation to the medical center is available at no charge. For more information call Toni at 314-286-2716.
- The Saint Louis County Department of Human Services County Older Resident Programs (CORP) needs volunteers to assist older adults with a variety of services, including transportation to doctors, grocery shopping and respite (relief time for caregivers). Retired professionals are needed to provide free income tax assistance, non-litigation legal consultations and notarize documents. Administrative volunteers are needed to set up income tax appointments and assist in CORP's Legal Services and Home Care and Repair offices. CORP volunteer positions are located throughout St. Louis County. Training and mileage reimbursements are offered, as well as flexible hours and short-term commitments for some positions. CORP services are available free of charge to St. Louis County residents, 60 years and older, who live independently in the community. For information regarding CORP volunteer opportunities and/or services, please call 314/615-4516, TTY 314/615- 4425, or email esherman@stlouisco.com.
- Help Future Generations! The Alzheimer's Disease Research Center, Memory and Aging Project at Washington University is seeking volunteers to participate in a study as a comparison to a group of people whose parents had Alzheimer's disease. The aim of the study is to determine tests that may help early diagnosis and future treatments for Alzheimer's disease. You may be eligible to participate if you are 1) Healthy, age 45-74 2) If both of your parents lived (or are still living) to age 70 or older and never developed Alzheimer's disease (dementia). There will be clinical assessment, psychometric testing, blood draws, MRI (Magnetic Resonance Imaging) scan of the brain, lumbar puncture and PET scan (Positron Emission Tomography). Compensation is provided for time and effort. If you are interested, please call the study coordinator, Becky Fierberg at 314-286- 2683.
- Pathways Community Hospice invites you to volunteer and make a difference during life's final journey. Volunteers visit patients in homes or nursing homes, offer companionship and support, and some volunteers may sit with a home patient if the caregiver requires a short time away. Volunteers share approximately 2 hours per week in areas that are convenient for them. Training is provided and schedule flexibility is available. For more information, call Joyce Day, Volunteer Coordinator, at 636-733-7399 or email jday@pathwayshospice.com.
- Saint Louis University researchers are recruiting volunteers to participate in a study that tests a medication to treat mild to moderate Alzheimer's disease. The research will be conducted at the Wohl Memorial Institute, 1221 S. Grand Blvd., and will involve about 355 participants from up to 85 centers in 11 countries. Saint Louis University expects to enroll 10 study volunteers. Participants will be randomly divided into five groups. For three months, they will receive one of three doses of an investigational medication; another medication currently used to treat Alzheimer's disease; or a placebo. This portion of the study includes eight visits. Those who qualify for the study can't be taking a medication for memory problems or cognitive impairment, must be at least 50 and must be accompanied by a caregiver for study appointments. George Grossberg, M.D., Samuel W. Fordyce Professor and director of geriatric psychiatry at Saint Louis University, is the principal investigator. For information, call 314-268-5385.

- Volunteers needed for 'Aging-in-Place' Program for Seniors. An hour of your time could make all the difference in an older adult's life. The Naturally Occurring Retirement Community (NORC) Project, a non-denominational program of the Jewish Federation of St. Louis, has exciting opportunities for you to help others in your community. Volunteers may help older adults with transportation, minor home repairs, yard work, computer training, friendly visits and more. There are also openings for help with special events and office assistance. Training will be provided. For more information please contact Traci Lato at 314.442.3808 or tlato@jfedstl.org.
- BJC Hospice is looking for volunteers. "If you want to experience the most rewarding work that you've ever done," says Dolores Schulte of Florissant, "try volunteering with families like those I've helped." Schulte, now 75, is a hospice volunteer for BJC Hospice and has been for seven years. She visits with adults in hospice care in their home to give their caretakers (usually other family members) a chance to go to the store, run other errands or take some needed time for themselves. If you think you would enjoy this type of volunteer opportunity, one that is flexible to your availability, and with a commitment as small as one time a month, please call Eileen Spinner at BJC Hospice to set up an interview at 314-953-1762, or send email to etr7873@bjc.org.
- Trail Watch Volunteers Make a Difference - An area-wide orientation training session will be offered to prospective Trail Watch volunteers on Wednesday, August 23rd at Queeny Park in the Greensfelder Recreation Center, 550 Weidman Rd. 63011.
